

CIPHERELLA'S GAZETTE

Property of . Do not disseminate.

Although not officially affiliated with the UDC, the independent zombie-fighter known as Cipherella has often served as a useful ally. Her monthly publication, Cipherella's Gazette, has been a means of disseminating important information to the uninfected public—often right under the decaying noses of our enemies.

We are sad to report that Cipherella has vanished. The last issue of her Gazette contained an ominous hint that she saw 'the worst' coming. That issue appeared nearly two months ago and, since then, there has been no word from her. Her fate, along with her true identity, remains unknown.

The UDC has managed to recover Cipherella's laptop (red, heart-shaped, bling-encrusted, and fitted with a poison needle trap) but, as might be expected, all its contents are heavily encrypted. We need her password and, we hope, she has left it for us in her final issue.
